Sometimes it's a good thing to stop for awhile and see where we're heading, and what we're doing. Are we, after all, becoming more intelligent or are we just simply getting an education, amassing facts and figures, and learning names?

The word intelligence is derived from inter (between) and legere (to choose), meaning the ability to discriminate. Are we learning to choose the valuable from the transient, the beautiful from the ugly, the good from the bad, and the better from the merely good? Have we learned in our college career to choose, and think, and talk about the really important things? Can we exercise that objective disinterestedness which characterizes the man of intelligence?

In an article by C. I. Bell in the N.Y. Times magazine the author said that "By the exercise of intelligence one learns to see things as they are rather than as they are esteemed to be by the crowd which shout mass judgments at us." It would appear that one nowadays with a trained intelligence is in a state of revolt, in revolt against the primary fashions, whether in incidentals or ideas, which are basely exploited among us; the popular concerts; the bragging advertisements; the complacent narrow-mindedness; the confusion between "progress and the mere passing of time"; these many things which make the intelligent man so often unhappy and put him in peril. Indeed, one author says that intelligence will make one happy only with the happiness which here on earth is near allied to tears.

But without it imagine the terrible state of mankind, who would swiftly descend to the level of a cage of contending beasts. Clearly facts today are not enough. We cannot allow ourselves, as Bell says, to become merely "more efficient havers of wood and drawers of water and servants of machines."

ALL THE NEWS THAT'S FIT TO PRINT

LISTEN BLOOD HOUND!

From time to time there comes to the Dean's Office a plea for certain types of blood. In order to provide this vital and often life-giving assistance it urgently requested that those who will contribute their blood go by the office of the Dean and list his name and blood type. This blood may either donated or sold - the important thing is that there will be students available to supply their blood. Don't wait - do it today or tomorrow!

COLLAPSE OF SUMMER HORIZONS

Sheep-skins will again shroud some noble few who shall have survived the hours of the Davidson academic whirl. It has been announced that a number of students will be awarded diplomas on the final day of summer school, Friday night, August 27. No mention has been made concerning the identity of these scholars. . . So, when school's out, just look about, tune your ears, and hear them shout!!

An enlightened mind is not hoodwinked; it is not shut up in a gloomy prison till it thinks the walls of its own dungeon the limits of the universe, and the reach of its own chain the outer verge of intelligence.

- Henry W. Longfellow

The Chapel program these mornings proved to be very interesting and helpful. Dr. F.O. Pickett spoke on "The Professor's Student". In the midst of a talk spiced with humor and personal experiences Dr. Pickett pointed out several characteristics that should be evident in a good student, from the professor's viewpoint. For the benefit of those who have expressed an interest, we list the main characteristics.

- (1) He is endowed with an average amount of intelligence.
- (2) He has confidence in himself and his abilities.
- (3) He is capable of thinking out things for himself (rather than just being "filled" with what he hears).
- (4) He is practical in his daily life.
- (5) He doesn't attempt to spot or cram (but does his work every day).
- (6) He speaks freely in class and respects.

ORCHIDS AND ONIONS --

ORCHIDS TO: Incredibly clean for his excellent work on the Tennis Tournament.

ONIONS TO: those of us who continue to walk on the campus grass, defying courtesy and Dr. Cunningham's request.

The tallest and the smallest among us are so alike diminutive and pitifully base, it is a madness to calculate the difference.

-- Thackeray

At long last those of you who have wondered about the difference between a Democrat and a Communist are here, with the question answered for you.

The Shuttle Board will start on Monday for those who wish to engage in some strenuous exercise. The trip will be located in Georgia Lodge.

WHY DOES HE SING?

As a result of the Yacht Club we have no doubt discovered the reason for the "Y" room directory. This has been pointed by the "Y" and the "Y" club members in hope that you will think it useful and helpful. It is suggested that you get the roster and perhaps place it in a conspicuous place in your room so that it will be available.

WHY DOES HE SING?

The other night someone(?) was asked with characteristic shyness and timidity what he would do if he were elected to the date. In such a situation he should have said, "I would do nothing, I would be elected on the grounds that he had no choice--he would have to stay home and read a letter."

Edwards and his staff are still not successful in their attempt to get rid of the weeds, but the grass is growing and the weeds are being pulled out one by one. The weeds are being pulled out one by one. The weeds are being pulled out one by one. The weeds are being pulled out one by one.
